£3m grant to protect masterpiece

by Dan Stephens

ONE of the borough's much-loved treasures is to be preserved for future generations, thanks to a £3 million grant.

The Painted Hall at the Old Royal Naval College has won the funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF). It will be used as part of an £8 million conservation project to protect the painting and provide new facilities to ensure visitors get the most from the cultural gem.

Over 3,700 square metres of the painting will be cleaned and conserved during a two-year programme. As part of the project visitors to the naval college will be given a once-in-a-life time opportunity to get close to the painting and see the conversation work in detail.

A temporary lift will be installed to enable access to the scaffolding for public tours.

The project also involves the installation of state-of-the-art lighting and a sophisticated environmental system to protect the painting and ensure no further conservation work is required for at least 100 years.

Conservation director William Palin told GT: "The Painted Hall is one of Britain's greatest architectural and artistic treasures, but it is too little known. Central to this project is cutting-edge conservation and the highest curatorial standards.

"These will give the Painted Hall the national and international prominence it deserves, providing a transformed and enriched visitor experience and a sustainable future for this 300-year-old masterpiece."

The King William Undercroft, originally designed as a dining hall, will be brought back to its original form and include a new gallery, reception and café.

One of the royal borough's most famous historic attractions, the Painted Hall is sometimes described as 'the UK's Sistine Chapel' and it is part of Maritime Greenwich's UNESCO World Heritage Site. Designed by Sir Christopher Wren and opened in 1694, it was decorated by artist Sir James Thornhill between 1708 and 1727.

Son used mother's Blue Badge after her death

A MAN has been fined after he was caught using his mother's Blue Badge parking permit six months after she died.

Abdul Karim, aged 47, of Villacourt Road, Plumstead, was found guilty in his absence at Bexley Magistrates Court on March 21.

Mr Karim was seen returning to his car parked on a yellow line in Polytechnic Street, Woolwich on November 3 last year. When investigators from the council asked to inspect the Blue Badge displayed in his car, he said his mother was elsewhere in Woolwich.

The officers did not believe his story and confiscated the badge. Following checks it was established that Mr Karim's mother had died in May 2015.

When interviewed, Mr Karim expressed remorse for his actions and denied that he had used the badge on other occasions since his mother passed away.

The council went ahead with the prosecution and, following his conviction, Mr Karim was fined £440 and ordered to pay a contribution towards prosecution costs of £700 plus a Victim Surcharge of £44.

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, cabinet member for customer services, said the council was taking rigorous action to tackle Blue Badge misuse and the prosecution was part of its commitment to prevent and detect fraud.

"This is good news for all genuine Blue Badge holders who so often are inconvenienced by other car drivers who take up valuable parking spaces whilst misusing permits that they have no right to use," she said.

● If you suspect someone of committing Blue Badge fraud against the royal borough call 0800 169 6975 or email Blue-Badge-Fraud@royalgreenwich.gov.uk - any information will be treated in confidence.

WW2 Para honoured

A FORMER World War II paratrooper, whose portrait hangs in Prince Charles' home at Clarence House, has been given a print of the picture by the artist.

Geoff Pattinson, from Shooters Hill, who will soon be celebrating his 92nd birthday, served with the 9th Battalion Parachute Regiment and took part in the D-Day Operation Overlord in June 1944, landing in Normandy by glider.

His portrait was one of 12 commissioned by the Prince of Wales to pay tribute to some of the heroes of the Normandy invasion. The dozen paintings all hang in Clarence House where Geoff met the Queen and Prince Charles last year.

Geoff's portrait was painted by artist Jonathan Yeo who has given the WWII veteran a print. It was presented to him at Shooters Hill Golf Club last week by the mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Norman Adams.

The print now has pride of place at the club where Geoff has been a member since 1958. He said he was very pleased with the portrait, adding: "It's a great honour to have the picture hanging on the wall of the golf club. It's very strong."

Club president Len Newland described Geoff as a remarkable man: "As he will say himself, he is not a hero but just someone who is still here and can represent all of those who perished in the conflict, and we are proud that Geoff is our own reminder of things past."

A message from the artist's gallery which was read out at the presentation last Wednesday said: "Geoffrey is indeed a wonderful example of a gentleman and showed us his incredible humility and brilliant humour during the sittings here with us at the studio."

New electric vehicle charge points in the borough

IF you drive an electric vehicle you can now charge your vehicle at even more locations across the borough.

A new charging point has been installed in Market Street, Woolwich and two more will soon be available in Calderwood Car Park in Woolwich.

These are in addition to four new rapid charging points, installed at the end of 2015, which provide a super-fast top-up, allowing drivers to quickly extend their range on longer journeys:

- Maidenstone Hill, Greenwich (off the A2)
- Eltham Palace Road, Horn Park (off the A20 and South Circular)

- West Parkside, Greenwich Peninsula (off the A102)
- John Wilson Street, Woolwich (off the South Circular).

The council is working to increase the number of charging points on public highways with Source London, the company which plans to have more than 500 points installed across London by 2018.

Drivers need to sign up to be able to use the charging points and they can download an app to find out the location of their nearest points and their availability.

St George's meeting

Mayoral invitation

LOCAL people are being invited to celebrate the inauguration of the new Mayor of Royal Greenwich next month.

There are 15 pairs of tickets available to attend the event in the Painted Hall at the Old Royal Naval College, Greenwich when Cllr Olu Babatola will take over from the current mayor, Cllr Norman Adams.

Names will be entered into a draw and the winners will be invited to take a companion. They will join other guests from the wide spectrum of Greenwich life, as well as Cllr Adams and the council leader, Cllr Denise Hyland.

Guests will have the opportunity to see the ceremony unfold within the surrounds of the spectacular and historic Painted Hall.

The mayor is elected by council members at an annual meeting and the position is held for one year. He or she is the first citizen of the royal borough and acts as an ambassador at public affairs, and at civic and ceremonial events.

Cllr Babatola represents Thamesmead Moorings ward and was first elected as a councillor in 2014. He has served as deputy mayor for the past year and will take up his new duties after the inauguration.

Cllr Hyland said: "Looking around Royal Greenwich there is much of which to be proud. The physical regeneration of our community continues apace, while there are many developments in our economic, social and community life. I was determined that we should open the ceremony to more local people to reflect on the role our community plays in achieving the successes we have enjoyed over the last year.

"It is also a great way to welcome Cllr Babatola to his new role as mayor, and to thank Cllr Adams for his hard work and service during his tenure."

● The inauguration will be held at 7pm on Wednesday, May 25 – to enter the draw, please email mayor@royalgreenwich.gov.uk or write to the Mayor's Office, Town Hall, Wellington Street, Woolwich SE18 6PW.

Teacher stars in TV advert

AN "inspiring and talented" teacher at a Thamesmead school is fronting a new TV advertising campaign to attract new people into her much-loved profession.

Tayo Oyeniyi, who teaches English at Woolwich Polytechnic School, was selected to take part in the Your Future: Their Future teacher recruitment campaign that launched on screen last week.

It is due to appear in commercial breaks on shows such as Gogglebox and Scott & Bailey to highlight that people can still apply to start training in the next academic year starting in September.

Tayo is deputy head of year 11 and started teaching four years ago after running theatre workshops for young people.

She said: "I love being a teacher. Young people are funny and smart and inspiring, and it is a privilege to be able to work with them.

"It's great to be involved in the campaign to encourage more people to become teachers."

Roger Pope, chair of the National College for Teaching and Leadership (NCTL) which is running the recruitment campaign, said: "Tayo is one of the country's most inspiring and talented classroom teachers chosen to star in our advert, which explains why people with the passion and potential to teach should consider a career in the profession."

NCTL provides a programme of support to help people become teachers, also providing guidance through the application process.

Tax-free bursaries and scholarships are being offered to top graduates who train to teach core academic subjects.

Hoppy Easter

THERE'S no excuse for youngsters to be bored this Easter as activities continue into the second week of the school holidays.

A number of events were lined up over the Easter weekend including egg hunts, a barn dance, and arts and craft.

Charlton House hosted two days of activities, organised by Global Fusion Music & Arts, kicking off with a barn dance on Good Friday to music by the local Morrigan Barn Dance Band.

On Saturday, families enjoyed an afternoon being busy making bonnets and bags, painting and hunting eggs, and watching films in a children's movie corner.

Youngsters Marmalade and Amelie (pictured above) said: "We have had a really fun time, it was great."

Woodlands Farm at Shooters Hill held an Easter trail on Good Friday when children could go on a treasure hunt of discovery, finding out about the spring animals.

The sunniest day of the weekend saw a great turnout of families eager to explore the farm.

Residents made the most of free screenings of children's films such as Paddington and Hop on the Big Screen in Woolwich town centre over the weekend.

The funfair at Blackheath has also been attracting the crowds and remains there this week.

The royal borough libraries have been holding Easter-themed events during the week including Easter bunny craft activities and Messy Morning egg time.

Activities continue this week – details are available at www.better.org.uk and at individual libraries.

A Naga Kirtan procession will start at 1pm from the Gurdwara Sahib place of worship in Calderwood Street, Woolwich, concluding at the Gurdwara Sahib in Masons Hill.

Local people are encouraged to go along and enjoy the festivities.

Bodycams to 'protect us all'

THE royal borough's town centre wardens have been kitted out with state-of-the-art, body-worn cameras, providing further support and reassurance to the public.

When activated, the cameras will be able to gather video and audio evidence of an incident, making it clear what happened, when it occurred and who was involved.

The cameras aim to protect both wardens and possible offenders by ensuring that there is indisputable evidence that can be referred to, where required, by all parties.

They are also expected to improve collection rates for fixed penalty notices as offenders are less likely to dispute fines or evade payment if an incident has been caught on camera.

In other boroughs, body-worn video equipment has seen collection rates of fines rise from 50 per cent to 69 per cent in the short period since introduction.

Nora and Eddie White have lived in the royal borough for more than 50 years and have appreciated efforts of local town centre wardens.

Eddie told GT: "I think bodycams are a good idea and should help with law and order. They will protect both the public and the wardens while they go about their work."

The introduction of the new equipment is part of a series of measures undertaken by the council that aims to tackle crime such as dog fouling, littering and fly-tipping.

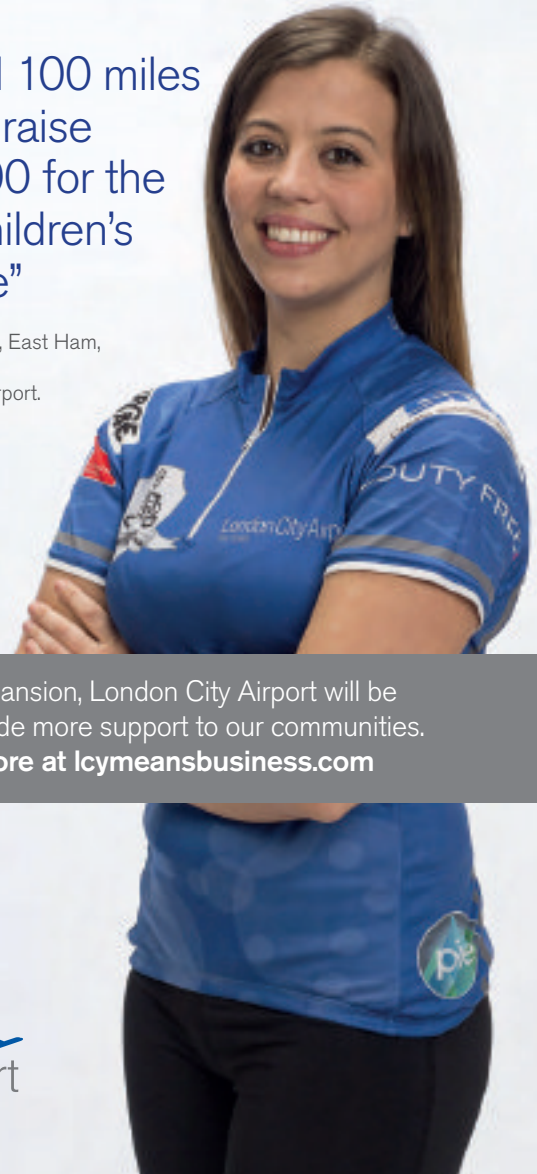

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "The new video equipment now worn by our town centre wardens will play a valuable role in increasing safety both for members of the public, and the wardens themselves."

"The council is committed to further reducing crime and anti-social behaviour wherever possible."

ROYAL Borough of GREENWICH

It's official – we're a social enterprise 'hotspot'

THE borough has been officially named as a social enterprise 'hotspot', where social enterprise firms are helped and encouraged to thrive.

The award has come from the national body, Social Enterprise UK, and recognises the efforts made in the borough by a broad partnership. This includes the council, Greenwich Co-operative Development Agency, the University of Greenwich, Business in the Community, the South East London Chamber of Commerce and Greenwich Leisure Limited (aka Better).

Social enterprises tackle social problems, improve communities, people's life chances or the environment. They sell goods and services in the open market, but they re-invest their profits back into the business or the local community. So, when they profit, society profits.

Cllr John Fahy, cabinet member for development of co-operative council and social enterprise, said: "This award is a major boost to the council's policy of helping our local social enterprises to grow and encouraging new ones to start up here.

"It helps cement the borough's reputation as a supportive environment for social enterprises and entrepreneurs, in turn helping to create more jobs for local people."

The council already has a strong track record in supporting social enterprises. It pioneered the setting up of Greenwich Leisure Ltd, a new way of running leisure centres through a not-for-profit organisation. This has now become one of the country's leading social enterprises.

The award outlines a programme of actions that will support the development of the social enterprise sector in the borough and puts social enterprises at the forefront of developing innovative approaches to the challenges faced by providers of public services.

Council quick to clean up after Storm Katie

COUNCIL teams were quick to swing into action and clear up after the dramatic Storm Katie, which caused havoc overnight on Easter Sunday.

Newspapers and television stations throughout the country used photos of a huge buckled crane on a building site in Creek Road, Greenwich, to illustrate the damage left in Katie's wake.

The road was closed to traffic after the crane folded in half just before 2am on Easter Monday in wind speeds of up to 70mph. No-one was injured, and the road remained closed until the crane was made safe.

Council officers were alerted and organised road closures. Creek Road between Norman Road and the town centre was closed to traffic for 24 hours.

As daylight broke, the council's building control team supervised the dismantling of the crane. Tenants living above the nearby Lord Hood pub were allowed home, 24 hours after being evacuated.

JJ Alston from Greenwich, who took the photos (below) of the crane being dismantled, said: "It took them maybe an hour - it made a great noise when it came loose and swung into the rest of the crane. The damaged section was then lowered on to the main road so it could be disassembled. Looks like they have done a really good job."

Other damage elsewhere in the borough was limited to garden fences and trees blown down. The council received more than 30 calls about fallen trees and branches, with teams starting clearance work from 3am.

North Greenwich Pier was out of action to Thames Clipper boats because of damage to its structure.

The Emirates Air Line cable car across the river and the Woolwich Ferry were both grounded until the storm's high winds died down. And shoppers setting off to get bargains at Bluewater faced hours of jams after the Queen Elizabeth II Bridge was closed to southbound traffic.

Southeastern trains were also affected by fallen trees and landslips throughout the area.

A council spokesman said: "The council's well-rehearsed emergency plan swung into action and we were able to clear up most of the damage by the

MANGLED WRECKAGE: contractors remove the damaged section of a giant crane in Creekside

Parents hear about work to tackle knife crime and gangs

PARENTS learnt about the wealth of resources and support groups available to families worried about gang and knife crime at a recent seminar.

Parents were given the opportunity to share their own family experiences.

Sally Knox, mother of the actor Rob Knox, who died after being stabbed in Sidcup in 2008 when he was just 18, spoke about the horror of her son's death. She also described the work of the Rob Knox Foundation, set up in his memory to educate young people on the dangers of street violence and knife crime.

Another mum described the difficult challenges she had experienced with her son and how she had benefited from the ten-week non-violent resistance (NVR) programme for parents run by the NHS Oxleas Foundation Trust.

The seminar was hosted by the council and organised by the Metropolitan Police as part of a wide-ranging, multi-agency approach to tackle youth knife crime and gang violence in the borough.

The Violent and Organised Crime Unit (VOCU), the dedicated police team funded by the royal borough to tackle violent crime, gave an update on its work, and there were speakers from the NSPCC, Charlton Athletic Community Trust, the Police Independent Advisory Group and the council's family and community safety services.

Borough police commander, Detective Chief Superintendent Helen Millichap, said: "I am really glad that parents could attend such a worthwhile and informative seminar. We will continue to work very hard with our partners and community leaders on preventative action as part of a joined up approach to tackling these problems."

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for community safety and environment, added: "It was invaluable to hear not only from the police and council services on tackling knife and gang crime but also from charities, partner organisations and parents."

"Through working together, we can ensure that fewer families have to go through the painful effects of a loved one being caught up in knife or gang crime."

HEAD teacher Roy Coleman (above) is hoping to raise thousands of pounds for a children's charity when he runs in the London Marathon later this month.

Roy, head of Nightingale Primary School in Woolwich, has already raised more than £1,000 of his £3,000 target for the NSPCC. He told Greenwich Time: "When I turned 40 I wanted to challenge myself and get more active. Running the Marathon is certainly a big challenge, but the charity NSPCC is close to my heart so this helps drive me on."

He has been getting pupils involved to help with his training, including Kledjon, Lauren and Mevleen (pictured). Although they said they "love cycling" and "love football", they admitted they aren't fans of running. One of them described the London Marathon as "very far".

They have donated to Roy's campaign as have teaching and other colleagues at the school. Roy's donation page can be found at www.virginmoneygiving.com (search for Roy Coleman).

Afternoon Delight

ST MARY'S Community Centre in Eltham High Street has launched a new social group called Afternoon Delight.

Director Patrick O'Sullivan said: "It is designed for adults where they can listen to talks, chat and enjoy themselves. It has only just started and we already have 20 members, mainly retired people. Entry is £1 plus 50p for tea, and it meets on the second Wednesday of each month from 2-3.35pm.

"People can contact us first, or just turn up. We have already had a talk from a 1950s pop star, and a teacher who gave reminiscences about local businesses. We also hold quizzes.

"People should definitely come along because we've got great facilities and there are good transport connections, refreshments and toilets specially for disabled people."

St Mary's is a complex made up of five community buildings offering a variety of rooms, from small private rooms to large halls, with capacity from as few as eight people to up to 200.

The organisation is managed by the local community elected annually. It is a registered charity and supported by the council. Scores of activities are available, including playgroups, Beavers and Scouts, the U3A Computer Club, bingo, judo, ladies' keep fit, Irish lunch club, baby ballet, the Eltham and Woolwich Stamp Club, and the Greenwich MS Society.

The greatest sea battle remembered

VALIANT SERVICE: a 14ft long model of the battlecruiser HMS Queen Mary made in wood with plated metal

THE centenary of the greatest sea battle of the First World War is being marked by a new exhibition at the National Maritime Museum in Greenwich.

The Battle of Jutland involved 279 ships on May 31, 1916 when the North Sea witnessed a massive clash between the British Grand Fleet and the German High Seas Fleet.

Both sides suffered heavy losses in ships and men, with more than 8,500 lives lost in the action. Despite being the biggest naval surface engagement to date, Jutland was one of the most keenly-felt disappointments of the war, with neither side achieving a decisive victory.

Visitors to the new exhibition will learn of the battle, its lead-up and the experience of serving aboard British and German warships.

The story will be told through objects such as paintings, photographs, ship models and plans, sailor-made craft work and medals, many of which are on display for the first time.

One of the first of these objects to be encountered, will be a 14ft long shipbuilder's model of HMS Queen Mary, one of the largest battle cruisers involved in the action at Jutland and destroyed in the battle, leaving only eighteen survivors of the 1,266-strong crew.

The exhibition runs from May 20 to November 2018, and is open every day from 10am to 5pm. Admission is free. More details at www.rmg.co.uk

"Why not come as a family, perform together and be part of this unique opportunity?"

IGGLEPIGGLE, Upsy Daisy and Makka Pakka are on their way to Blackheath this summer.
The much-loved characters from the CBeebies show, In the Night Garden, will be setting up their Showdome in Circus Field opposite Greenwich Park from May 26 until June 11.
And local people are being offered a special offer on ticket prices.
There are two different shows to choose from, and each one lasts just under an hour and follows a different story. All the characters appear in both shows.

In the Ninky Nonk show, Igglepiggle loses his blanket and all his friends help him find it.
In the Pinky Ponk show, Makka Pakka washes everyone's faces, until his sponge gets stuck in Upsy Daisy's megaphone. There's also the chance for youngsters to meet their favourite characters.
To take advantage of the ticket offer for residents, use the code UPSY95 to get a five per cent reduction on orders under £60 and a £5 coupon for orders over £60. For more details about the show visit the website at www.nightgardenlive.com

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

For further information, please contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661.

Please leave your home in a good condition!

Addicks goalie inspires kids

KICK OFF: assistant head teacher Anna Sullivan, Nick Pope and Bob Bolder with pupils at Cardwell Primary School

CHARLTON Athletic goalie Nick Pope visited Cardwell Primary School in Woolwich to talk about life as a professional sportsman.

Having been named Football League Championship Goalkeeper of the Week after the game against Middlesbrough, he was given a warm welcome by Addicks fans.

Pupils asked Nick about his training, inspirations and success, and he said afterwards: "I and all the other players love visiting local schools - the club has great links to the community. Hopefully the kids at Cardwell School received some good advice today."

The visit was part of Charlton Athletic Community Trust's (CACT) Move & Learn programme, which encourages children to take part in physical activity, eat healthily and enjoy an active lifestyle.

Nick was joined by former Charlton Athletic goalkeeper Bob Bolder, who runs the scheme.

Cardwell's assistant head teacher Anna Sullivan said the school's links with CACT over the last 14 years had given pupils great opportunities and access to facilities.

"Meeting players like Nick really inspires the children while Bob Bolder and the other coaches who deliver sessions week in, week out are great role models too," she said.
